Eduardo Porter- “Economic Scene” Columnist, New York Times

Eduardo Porter writes the Economic Scene column for The New York Times. Previously, he was a member of The Times’ editorial board, where he wrote about business, economics, and a mix of other matters. In 2001, Mr. Porter published the book, “The Price of Everything” (Portfolio/Penguin).

Mr. Porter became a journalist over two decades ago, working as a financial reporter for Notimex, a Mexican news agency, in Mexico City. He was deployed as a correspondent to Tokyo and London. In 1996 he moved to São Paulo, Brazil, as editor of América Economía, a business magazine. In 2000, Mr. Porter joined The Wall Street Journal in Los Angeles to cover the growing Hispanic population. He joined The New York Times in 2004 to cover economics.

Mr. Porter was born in Phoenix and grew up in the United States, Mexico and Belgium. He graduated with a degree in physics from the Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México and has an M.Sc. in quantum fields and fundamental forces from the Imperial College of Science and Technology in London. He has a son, Mateo, and lives in Brooklyn.