

THE LEGAL LEGACY OF SALE V. HAITIAN CENTERS COUNCIL

The Human Rights Institute invites you to its lunch series on Sale v. Haitian Centers Council, 509 U.S. 155 (1993). Brought on behalf of Haitians interdicted on the high seas and detained on Guantánamo, Sale was one of the seminal American human rights advocacy efforts of the 1990s. The litigation changed U.S. foreign policy, spawned satellite litigation, became the subject of numerous books and articles, and inspired a generation of human rights scholars and activists. Today, two decades after the Haitian case, it is worth examining aspects of its legal legacy.

Harold Hongju Koh, Sterling Professor of International Law, Yale Law School & Scholar in Residence, Columbia Law School, will moderate all sessions.
